Long Standing Chief Councilor Not Running In Next Election

Chief Glenn Bennett has announced that he will not be running for a sixth term in the upcoming Council elections in June. Chief Bennett has filled this role for 10 years and feels it is time to let someone else take the reigns. Bennett adds that he will support and work with the newly elected Chief when the time comes. While it was a difficult decision, Bennett is proud of the many things Council has been able to accomplish over the past decade and the many opportunities to come.

Glenn began his employment with the Kitselas Administration in 1992 under the Aboriginal Fisheries Program and was encouraged to apply for the position of Treaty Coordinator in 1995. Later he was appointed as Band Manager and ran for Council and then Chief Councilor.

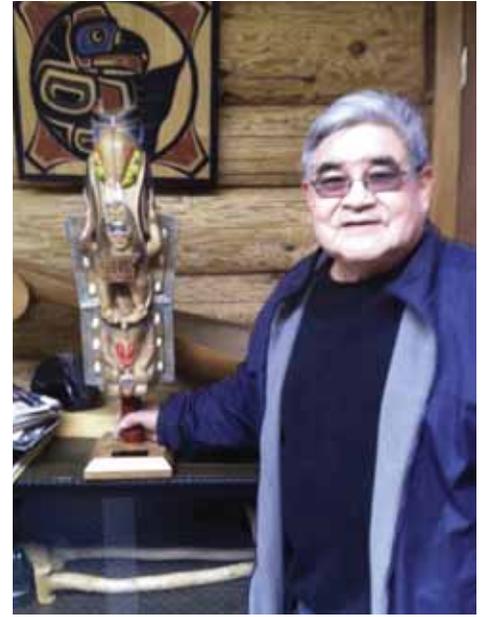

Throughout his tenure, Glenn has witnessed the successful completion of the new administration building in Gitau; the establishment of new programs such as the Land Management Act; and improved fire protection, water and sewer services. Most recently, the construction of new homes in Gitau that will enable 19 young families to come home. Significant projects, such as the Port of Prince Rupert Phase II negotiations will see $1.9 million coming to the Kitselas to be used to support economic development. Bennett is also looking forward to the successful completion of the Specific Claims Process over IR # 7 (Ketonda) by the end of March, which will represent another $2.5 million settlement for the Kitselas.

“It has been a good 10 years,” Bennett adds, reflecting on the many successes over the years,. Bennett will be moving back to the Treaty Department after his term is over. He looks forward to his new role and feels the Treaty will enable the Kitselas to determine their own destiny.

The current council mandate will expire June 12th. An electoral officer will be appointed at the next Council meeting. Stay tuned for more information...

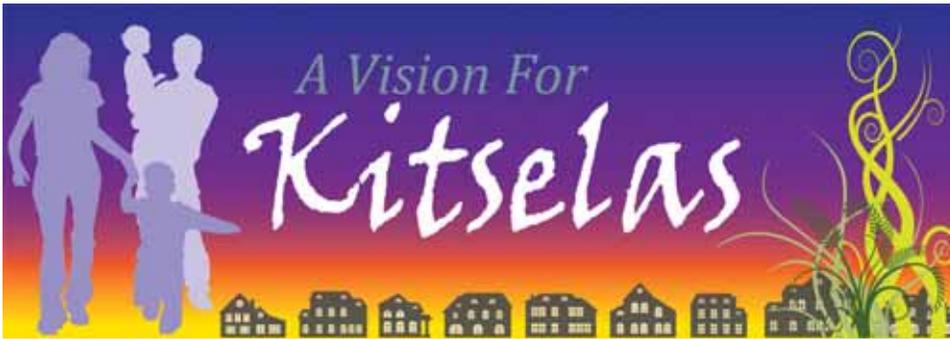

Dr. Smith first came to Kitselas territory in 1981 with a passion to research the history of the people here. He has worked with the Kitselas for the last 30 years and was recently conducting research on the CN/Grand Trunk Railway as part of the Specific Claims process for IR # 7. While he is now looking toward retirement the Kitselas Administration is exploring a potential project with Dr. Smith with the objective of recording the oral history of the elders. Dr. Smith's protege Lidia Jendozjowsky was also recently in Kitselas to present the Council with her thesis “Memorializing Historical Imprints: Analysis of Historical Texts and Photos of the Kitselas 1850-1930”. Jendozjowsky is currently a pursuing her Doctorate at the University of Aberdeen in Scotland.

Community members have an opportunity to dream of a vision for Kitselas. The Lands Management Office is currently engaged in a Land Planning process that begins with Visioning. Visioning is a formal process in which a group of people develop a shared description of what they want their future to be like. It identifies opportunities to reinforce the essence of the community while making it a better place to live, work and play. Individuals may already have ideas but they are usually not communicated or shared in concrete ways, visioning allows for these ideas to come forward and then sorts the ideas to identify common themes.

The Kitselas Chief and Council and Administrative Staff participated in a visioning session on February 7th and the Elders and Youth were engaged February 15th. Idea boards have been placed at the Youth Centre and the Gitau Administration office and will remain until February 21st (Monday). Community Members are asked to participate by answering some questions namely: What do you like about Kitselas? What do you not like about Kitselas? In 30 years what would make Kitselas great? Participants can enter a draw for a chance to win Save-On Foods Gift Certificates or for a chance to have their name entered into the Kitselas Administration draw for Canucks Game on February 26th.

If community members are unable to get to the idea board they are encouraged to contact Sonja Foss at 635-8882 ext. 232 or email: sfoss@kitselas.com. This is your chance to have a say in the community you live in and what you want to see it become!

Wabsuwilaks'm Gitselasu - Fred Wilson

Wabsuwilaks'm Gitselasu is enjoying some successes, this year seems to be moving along way too quickly.

Sm'algayax Language Lessons are moving along nicely with Lorna Johnson instructing. The participants continue to learn many new words and phrases and have a goal of 500 words by June 2011. The program is accompanied by a cultural aspect of singing and drumming. The community is welcome to attend this program, however it is advisable to attend consistently in order to get the most from the lessons. Simply call the school at 635-3301 to confirm your attendance.

Terese Hagen has been presenting every Thursday afternoon to help students to learn how to cope with minor and major difficulties in every day living.

Recently, the students hosted a meeting for Northern Health Care officials on February 3rd at the School. The students prepared snacks and a luncheon. This was a beneficial experience for students as they were able to witness and observe the various professionals in a meeting setting.

The school is planning fundraising events in the future, so stay tuned!

Questions or suggestions can be directed to Fred at 635-3301.

Elder's Group Celebrates 20 Years

Approximately 30 people filled the Elder's Centre in Gitau on January 31st to join the Kitselas Elders Group in an open house and blessing of their new bus.

The freshly decaled bus made its maiden voyage after Major Dave Moulton blessed the bus and its future passengers. Looping throughout the community of Kitselas everyone was in a joyous mood as the bus represents the efforts of many to bring this project to life. The Elder's Group was first formed in 1991 and is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year. As Ken McDames stated in the opening remarks, it has taken at least that long to get the bus and the Elder's are definitely looking forward to the opportunities it will present.

The crowd enjoyed a wonderful spread prepared by the Elder's and shared in a cake that aptly expressed the way everyone was feeling - "Yahoo!"

The Kitselas Elders have plans to attend the Elder's Gathering this summer and will be conducting a number of fundraising efforts to help make this happen, so be sure to support your Elders!

Kitselas Elders Fund Raising SMORGASBORD

When: February 18th 2011

Where: Elder's Centre -
Gitau

Time: 11 am to 2 pm

Theme: HAMBURGER!
...meatloaf, burgers, etc.

Come out and support your Elders as they fundraise for their trip to the Elder's Gathering!

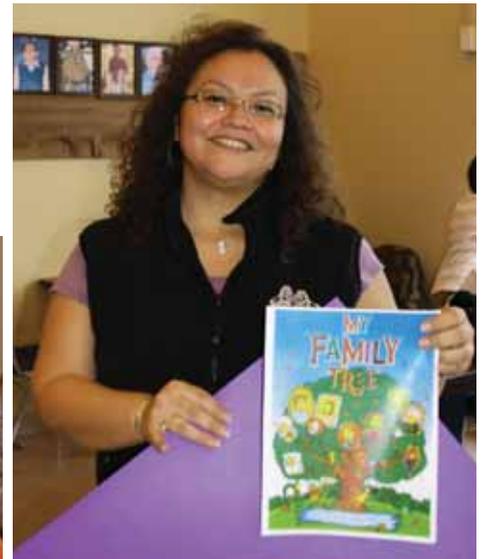

Family Tree Project

The Youth and Education Departments had a successful turnout for the Family Tree Project on February 11th at the Gitau Administration Building. The community participants shared a wonderful meal of comforting soup and bannock and a delicious assortment of desserts, catered by the Sunrunners.

This hands on event focused on exploring family tree roots. Attended by a range of age groups this event was a great way for the community to come together and was an especially valuable experience for the youth. The objective of this project is to promote the integration of traditional knowledge in the school and home learning. Participants developed a Personal History Book which is intended to develop self-confidence while exploring their cultural roots.

Try this activity at home with your children to reinforce their connection to their ancestors. Enter "How to Build a Family Tree" into Google to find a variety of links to get you started or simply start mapping out your roots starting with your grandparents, their children, your parents and their children and so on. Have fun!

New Website Sneak Peak!

The Kitselas Treaty Office has been working with Consulting company Spark Design out of Smithers to update the existing kitselas.bc.ca website. The new site will be easier to navigate and will host a number of new features. We anticipate the new site will be up and running in March. Stay tuned and in the meantime have a look at the changes!

Thinking About the Indian Act - Hilary Zornow

The Indian Act is simply a part of our lives, it often goes unquestioned and while our ancestors fought fervently to remove the bounds of the Indian Act it has remained essentially unchanged since it was first passed in 1876. This document has stripped Native people of their ability to self-govern and continues to impose itself as we strive toward progress – it is time to start questioning this document and its role in our lives.

The Indian Act set out to control Native people. Section 91 (24) of the Act gave Ottawa legislative jurisdiction over “Indians and lands reserved for Indians” – meaning they had authority to pass and impose laws on Native people. The Indian Act grew to become a powerful force of oppression. Native people were governed on the lands reserved for them by the Indian Agent. They could not leave their reserves unless they had permission from the Indian Agent and if they were caught leaving without permission they could be put in jail. The Indian Act also enabled the government to remove Native children from their homes, placing them in Residential Schools (which operated from 1880 to the early 1970s - over 100 years). In 1884, under the authority of the Indian Act, the government outlawed the potlatch, or feast system, forcing Native people to hide the most fundamental element of their culture for fear of being persecuted. The reserves that Native people had been given were considerably smaller and less fruitful than the lands that were opened for settlers. They were isolated from the territories they had used for harvesting and earning a living as they were now confined to the reserves and their traditional territories were quickly parceled off to White Settlers and became private lands. In Kitselas territory the Homestead Act of 1904 stated that any one person, except the Natives and Chinese, were allowed to have 160 acres free of charge anywhere along the Skeena River, in that same token the Kitselas were allotted approximately 4 acres each - an obvious injustice to a modern day observer.

Native people did not simply accept their fate; rather they began to fight for their right to maintain their own systems of governance as soon as they were threatened. In 1887 Tsimshian and Nisga’a Chiefs traveled to Victoria to press for treaties and self-government and were turned away. More efforts and petitions were made in these early years and each time the Native people were dismissed. In fact, the government felt so threatened by the political action taking place the Indian Act made it illegal for Native people to organize to discuss land claims in 1927. Native people also weren’t allowed to raise money to hire a lawyer to fight for their cause in the court system. It wasn’t until 1951 the Indian Act was amended and Native people were again allowed to organize and were given back the right to hold feasts.

To this day the Indian Act continues to impose itself on the lives of Native people. The Band Government is limited in its scope of power as it is subject to the will of the Minister of Indian Affairs, formerly known as the Indian Agent. While the Kitselas Reserve Lands Management Act has given more control over lands to the Kitselas these lands still remain reserve lands and are subject to the will of the Crown. In other words, the home you live in that resides on reserve land is not your private property, the land your house sits on still belongs to the Crown.

So what do you think of all this? This article does not have a conclusion for the express reason that it is intended to promote discussion. I implore you to visit the following website and read the Indian Act if you haven’t already <http://laws.justice.gc.ca/en/I-5/>, and join the Kitselas Treaty Facebook group to post your views. The URL for the Kitselas Treaty group is <http://on.fb.me/kitselastreaty>, while you have to request to join, anyone who would like to be apart of this group will be accepted. It is monitored daily and we encourage you to visit often to express your opinion, we want to hear it!

A Community Engagement Series will begin this Spring to discuss various elements related to Treaty and Self-government stay tuned!
